

The Friends of Alternative and Complementary Therapies presents: An award-winning film on modern industrial agriculture and biodynamic, sustainable farming methods.

HOW TO SAVE THE WORLD

one man, one cow,
one planet

Featuring Peter Proctor, father of modern biodynamics.

Directed and produced by Thomas and Barbara Burstyn.

For background on the film, see:
<http://www.howtosavetheworld.co.nz>

“Modern industrial agriculture is destroying the earth: desertification, water scarcity, toxic cocktails of agricultural chemicals pervading our food chains, ocean ecosystem collapse, soil erosion and massive loss of soil fertility.

Can one old man and a bucket full of cow-s. . . save the world?
Are you crazy?”

FILM P A N E L I S T S

WHERE: Workman Theatre,
CAMH 1001 Queen Street W.
at Ossington.

WHEN: FRIDAY, June 13,
2008 7:00 p.m.

TICKETS: $12 members
$15 non-members.

ADVANCE TICKETS:

To register, please contact Diane at 416-299-5113 or drwhittall@sympatico.ca
before Friday, June 6, 2008.

*All tickets to be picked up at the door
prior to the screening.*

SAME DAY TICKETS:

Tickets go on sale 30 min.
prior to the screening at the Workman Theatre, CAMH.

Lauren Baker, food researcher and activist experienced in local food economies, urban agriculture and food policy. She has worked with community groups in Toronto and beyond to implement sustainable food projects, including the Evergreen Brick Works food strategy and Food Share's urban agriculture program.

Eva Cabaca, CNP, RNCP, M.Ed. (Czech Rep.), teacher of biodynamic farming at the Toronto Waldorf School and past instructor at the Institute of Holistic Nutrition in Toronto. Devoted to sharing knowledge about simple whole living, spirituality and care for the environment, she also conducts classes in food preparation, local food production and food preservation.

Shantree Kacera, D.N, Ph.D and Lorena Bousquet-Kacera, founders and directors of Spirit of the Earth , The Living Centre and Living Arts Institute, established in 1983, offer programs that support individuals in the practice of conscious living. They are celebrated visionaries, authors, educators, nutrition researchers and world peace workers.

Manfred Palmer, co-founder and co-ordinator of the organic/biodynamic "Carrville Community Garden", on Toronto Waldorf School land.

Wayne Roberts, Project Coordinator, Toronto Food Policy Council. Founder of the Coalition for a Green Economy.

For more information, call FACT 416.299.5113 or see www.thefacts.org

Would you like to sponsor FACT?: Learn about the FACT from www.thefacts.org